

Bereavement Clearances

Helping hands at difficult times

Bereavement clearance can be very hard when a member of your family has passed away. We know that at such a difficult time, above all, you need a company that you can trust and one that will provide a tactful and discreet service.

Being a close, family-run business, we can only begin to imagine how distressing it must be, having suffered a recent bereavement to then have to deal with the house clearance arrangements. Our staff are polite, quiet, well presented and professional. We hope to give you peace of mind and take away as much of the stress as we can at this difficult and painful time.

If you need to make house clearance arrangements following a bereavement, but live some distance from the house, we can arrange to collect the house keys from you, the probate administrator or the estate agent.

Alternatively if you wish to and are able to be present whilst we clear the house, we are happy to talk to you about the person we are clearing the house after, and we'll make time to listen. We are very sympathetic. You will be treated with kindness and compassion and your loved ones effects will be removed from the house in a respectful and discreet way.

We remove all unwanted items including furniture, white goods and general rubbish from the property. We can carry out house clearances for any size of property, even when the premises are extremely cluttered as the result of hoarding or illness.

Also our Clearance team will start at a time that is convenient for you and we do not stop until you are satisfied. Each property is cleared from top to bottom: this includes clothes, blankets, carpets, bric-a-brac, lofts, garages, sheds and gardens. We are happy to provide you with a quotation before we start any clearance work.

We are able to put things aside for items that you have specifically asked us to look out for or for items we feel have monetary or sentimental value, such as photographs, important legal paperwork or jewelry.

We are a friendly and reliable team and we take a lot of pride in the personal service that we give to each of our customers at this emotional time.

Please get in touch with us if you would like any more information...
